IDENTIFYING YOUR NEEDS

Networking

Industry observers are forecasting that there will be about 1 Trillion Internet-connected devices by the end of 2013. Students and staff carrying smartphones, tablets and notebooks will need constant web access throughout the premises.

Multimedia

Many of your students are visual learners. Installing high-definition projectors and document cameras in your classroom will allow students to absorb information and understand the curriculum being delivered in a way never thought possible.

Storage and Security

Backup and secure both your electronic as well as non-electronic data - including paper files, students records, grades, attendance, journals and laboratory notes. Electronic systems like computers workstations and laptops, storage media, and other learning devices.

Computing and Software

Integrating PCs with the appropriate software and applications into the classroom lends the tools to engage and educate students that just a generation ago were unimaginable. We can supply your facility will desktops, notebooks and software to give your students the hands-on-education they will need to get to the head of the class.
